THE FUTURE OF THE TRANSVAAL. Never prophesy unless you know, is the tritest of warnings, and carries with it its own refutation, for if it were observed, who would be able to prophesy at all? Yet it is necessary, if the best course is to be found in which to direct the destinies and to shape the policy of a country, that an intelligent forecast should be made of events to come, and that the lessons of the past be applied as a guide to the future. The prosperity of the Transvaal, from an industrial and agricultural point of view, is assured. It rests on the success of the mining industry, as to the future of which there can be no shade of doubt. The Witwatersrand is not only the largest goldfield in the world, with a yield exceeding by far the output of any other mining centre, but it belongs to the rare class of mining ventures in which the speculative element has been largely eliminated, and which, for stability of returns, compares favourably with industrial undertakings. It is safe to say that Rand mining properties are more reliable investments than, for instance, railways, whose returns are largely affected by the vicissitudes of the weather, and the results of crops; and that they are more certain of profits than manufacturing ventures, since they are not subject to the vagaries of the laws of supply and demand. Gold is always sure...
